

MOMA STUDIO:

COMMON SENSES

Please join us for the inauguration of MOMA STUDIO: COMMON SENSES

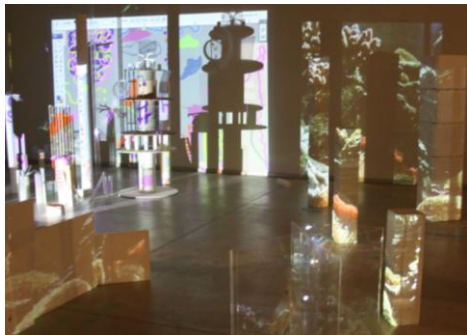

OPENING RECEPTION: Monday, September 24, 2012, 6:00 to 8:00 PM

Mezzanine, The Lewis B. and Dorothy Cullman Education and Research Building, enter at 4 W 54 St.

RSVP to alison_burstein@moma.org

Organized in conjunction with the exhibition Century of the Child: Growing by Design, 1900–2000, MoMA Studio: Common Senses is a multisensory environment at the intersection of education, design, and art that aims to foster our evolving relationships with nature, technology, and our everyday surroundings through community interactions and creative play. Open Sept. 24–Nov. 19, 2012, Wed–Mon, 12:00 to 4:00 p.m. Visit MoMA.org/momastudio

Collaborating artists, designers, gardeners and educators will be present to introduce their projects:

Light projection installation at Reggio Children, Italy.

Coloraturo building blocks by designer Karen Hewitt.

Domestic Integrities Field Part A-1, by artist Fritz Haeg.

Town and Country Dinner 2010 at Mildred's Lane.

Image credits: Light projection installation at Reggio Children, Italy. Photo Courtesy of Reggio Children. Coloraturo, Karen Hewitt, designer Ken Burris, photographer. Domestic Integrities Field Part A-1. Photo courtesy of Fritz Haeg. Town and Country Dinner 2010. Courtesy of Mildreds' Lane Archives.

MoMA Studio is made possible by a partnership with Volkswagen of America. Additional support is provided by The Contemporary Arts Council of The Museum of Modern Art.